ABSTRACT

Academic scholarships for college students are identified, including all the major merit programs--federal, state, private, and collegiate. Detailed information on 80,000 collegiate academic awards are presented by state and 845 schools as follows: name of the program, number of awards, value range of the award, class standing and grade point average requirements; scores needed on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and/or the American College Testing Program test; other award criteria (e.g., interview or recommendations required); whether financial need is considered in setting the amount of the award; majors students may select; restrictions (e.g., state residents, U.S. citizens); whether awards are renewable; and details of the application process. Three large federal programs for the academically talented are Harry S. Truman Scholarships, Reserve Office Training Corps (ROTC) programs, and military academy awards. States that provide merit-based awards for either state institutions or any accredited school are identified, along with principal corporate sponsors of merit scholarships for employee children, and principal private college sponsors of merit scholarships. Seven additional private sponsors are identified, and sources of further information are also recommended. Finally, some intellectual and financial benefits of collegiate honors programs are outlined. (SW)

CHAPTER 1 — FOR ALL YOU BRIGHT YOUNG PEOPLE

A New Era

Scholarships used to be awarded almost exclusively on the basis of financial need. But now a new trend has started. Educators are making room in the world of learning for financial incentives for academic achievement. More and more programs are being designed that reward excellence with no reference to financial need. In this listing you will find descriptions of all the major merit programs — federal, state, private, and collegiate.

Who Can Benefit From Academic Scholarships?

You — if you are one or all of these people:

- You have worked hard. Your grades are B or better. You stand in the upper third of your class. Your SAT or ACT scores are above the national average. (National averages: SAT VERBAL: 424; SAT MATH: 466; ACT Composite: 18.1).
- You have a wide range of interests. You have participated in school, church, community, and club activities and taken a leading role in organizing and advancing worthwhile programs.
- You have talents — in music, drama, art, dance, journalism, etc.
- You are a college-bound high school student.
- You are attending a two-year community college and want to transfer to a baccalaureate program.
- Your education was interrupted after less than two years of college. You want to return and finish your degree work.
- You want to pull ahead of your contemporaries. You want that special edge of recognition that comes from being the recipient of an academic scholarship.
- You need financial aid that is not based on financial need.

Organization of the Listings

- Chapter 3 describes the major academic awards offered by the federal government, the states, and private sponsors.
- Chapter 5. Here you will find a listing of the principal source of academic awards — the nation's colleges.
- Chapter 6. tells you about honors programs. What are honors programs? They are academic packages designed to challenge the bright student. They may include independent study, interdisciplinary research, special seminars, smaller classes, access to the top faculty. In our view, honors programs are part of a one-two punch. Academic scholarships attract bright students. Honors programs give them a mental work-out.

CHAPTER 2 — SOME THINGS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW...

Colleges in a Buyer's Market

For many years, colleges were in a seller's market. They could pick and choose from a horde of applicants. Elaborate screening mechanisms were set up to weed out those considered insufficiently blue-blooded or anointed to gain entry to their ivy-covered halls.

The screening mechanisms are still with us. But their main purpose today is to identify prospects, not to reject. Overbuilding of college plant, coupled with a declining prime-age population, have turned the admissions process into a buyer's market.

Less than 50 colleges remain which still enjoy the luxury of picking from two applicants or more for each class vacancy. The rest are scrambling. They spend as much as $200 per prospect to fill their classrooms.

In other words, students today are holding the cards. You, as a bright student, have at least four aces in your hand. Use these aces wisely to cut through the smoke screen of selectivity that colleges throw out. They really want you — and want you badly. Why? Because colleges need bright students. Bright students attract good faculty. Good faculty attracts grant and research money and helps build a college's reputation. The reputation, in turn, attracts students. Bright students, moreover, are more likely to go on to success, following graduation, to brag about their alma mater and give it credit for their accomplishments, and to make handsome alumni gifts to the old school. We're sure you have the picture.

Where Have All the High Scorers Gone?

Here is another factor that makes you a coveted person. Not only has there been a decline in the number of prime-age students, but there has been an even steeper drop in the number of high scorers on the SAT. In 1972, of about one million youngsters taking the SAT, 53,794 scored over 650 on their verbals. About the same number of students took the SAT in 1980, but now only 29,019 managed to top 650.

Something similar, but not quite as drastic, happened in the math test: 93,868 topped 650 in 1972; 73,368 in 1980.

Enhancing Your Eligibility

As you get deeper into the listings, you will note that many awards have SAT or ACT prerequisites. Let's suppose that there is one award for which you really want to compete — one worth $2,000 per year or $8,000 over four years. But there is one catch. The award has a SAT prerequisite of 1150 and your latest SATs were only 1090.

What should you do now? Turn away and look for other awards? Of course not. Take a good SAT preparation course. All the evidence seems to indicate that sound coaching can raise scores. And higher scores can put money — big money — in your pocket. In our example, a $200 investment in a SAT course that raises your score 60 or 70 points can translate into $8,000 worth of scholarships.

But one word of caution. Be leery of quickie courses or courses that promise huge results for little work on your part. SAT preparation is not a gimmick or an easy fix. It requires (1) a proven coaching method, (2) an extended participation period, and (3) effort and application on your part. A good SAT course is just another method of teaching.

One test preparation outfit that gets results is Stanley H. Kaplan, Ltd. It has over one hundred branches in the United States. For the address of the one nearest you, call toll-free 800-223-1782 or drop Mr. Kaplan a line at 131 West 56th Street, New York, NY 10019.

Don't Put All Your Eggs In One Basket

This listing will help you locate the academic/merit awards for which you are eligible. But don't put all your eggs in one basket and make the search for such scholarships your only strategy. It may turn out that schools which do not offer academic scholarships can provide you with an educationally or financially more attractive arrangement.

Equally important, don't overlook the fact that you may be eligible for need-based awards or awards that accrue to you for special reasons that are unique to you — opportunities that stem from your or your parents' employment, religious affiliation, nationality, ancestry, clubs, military service, etc.

What you need to do is fit your search for academic scholarships into an overall strategy that considers need-based and other sources of aid. The most helpful publication to teach you how to do this is called Don't Miss Out. It costs $2.50 (plus $0.50 postage) and can be requested from Octameron, P.O. Box 3437, Alexandria, VA 22302.

Read Don't Miss Out before you start any search for tuition aid. It will save you time and money.

Assemble Your References

Get Don't Miss Out. $2.50 (plus $0.50 postage) from Octameron, P.O. Box 3437, Alexandria, VA 22302. Your master guide to financial aid.

Get the Student Bulletin. Free. National Merit Scholarship Corporation, One American Plaza, Evanston, IL 60201. This booklet lists the 240 colleges which participate in the National Merit Corporation's scholarship competition. We will not repeat this listing in our college tables.

Locate a good college guide in the library or guidance office. We recommend Peterson's Annual Guide to Undergraduate Studies, The College Handbook, The College Planning/Search Book, Lovejoy's, or the Chronicle Four-Year College Databook. After you have identified colleges which sponsor programs for which you qualify, you will want to look up these colleges in one of the references and learn more about them: total cost, location, majors, special programs, etc. Make sure that the references you consult are up to date. A guide that is over a year old could seriously mislead you about attendance costs (which have been going up by 10 to 15% per year).

A Tip

Don't be blinded by a scholarship. Make sure the college you pick is right for you. As Helene Reynolds of Lovejoy's puts it, "You do not want to trade off money for a dull educational community."

And Now — Move Out!

Congratulations to you — and the best of luck in your search.

CHAPTER 3 — NON-COLLEGIATE ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIPS

Help From Uncle Sam

Uncle spends billions on need-based student aid — Pell Grants, Supplementary Educational Opportunity Grants, College Work-Study, Direct Student Loans, Guaranteed Student Loans, etc. Tucked in among all these biggies are three programs for the academically talented: two are military; one is not.

The Military Academies. Four years. All tuition and fees. Room and board. Medical care. A monthly allowance. A job following graduation. And a service obligation. Highly competitive. Good SAT/ACT scores. High grades. Strong evidence of leadership.

ROTC. There are two ROTC programs. You can apply for the regular four-year program and qualify for a $100/month subsistence allowance in your junior and senior years. Or you can apply for the highly competitive 2, 3, or 4-year scholarships which pay all tuition costs, fees, and books (but not room, board, transportation, and what colleges call "miscellaneous expenses") plus the $100/month subsistence allowance. Here, too, a job awaits you following graduation plus a service obligation. (SAT scores of 1200+ will greatly enhance your chance of winning a 4-year ROTC scholarship).

Harry S. Truman Scholarships. for in-college students. Nominations during the sophomore year. Awards are for junior and senior years plus graduate work. $5,000 per year. Oriented toward a public service career. 79 awards per year. Students selected generally have a B average or better, stand in the top 25% of class. More than half of the selectees had served as volunteers in local, state, and national political campaigns. For more information on this program, write Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation, 712 Jackson Place N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Help From Your State

More and more states are recognizing their bright youngsters. The following table lists the states which operate programs for good students.

1 Need Primary Criterion. Academic Threshold Must Be Met.	2 Merit Primary Criterion. Funds Generally Available for Study at Any Accredited Institution in the State.	3 Merit Primary Criterion. Restricted for Study in the State University System or a School Administered by State University System.
Arkansas	Colorado	Alaska
California	Florida	Arizona
Connecticut	Idaho	Delaware
Hawaii	Indiana	Georgia
Illinois	Iowa	Kentucky
Kansas	Louisiana	Missouri
Minnesota	Maryland	Montana
New Hampshire	Massachusetts	Nebraska
New Jersey	Michigan	Texas
Oregon	New York	Wyoming
South Carolina	Ohio
West Virginia	Rhode Island
	Washington

Explanation of Columns:

Column 1: Scholarships are need-based. To qualify, student must meet an academic benchmark or threshold (i.e. a 3.0 average in HS).

Column 2: Merit is primary criterion. In a small percentage of states, financial need must still be demonstrated to qualify for a monetary reward. In these cases, if financial need does not exist, student will receive honorary recognition such as being named a "state scholar." The awards can generally be used at any accredited school in the state, public or private. Under special circumstances, the award may be used for out-of-state study.

Column 3: Merit is primary criterion. The awards are limited to study at the state's university system or the programs are administered by the state university system. Example: U. of Missouri — Curators' scholarships; U. of Nebraska — Regents scholarships.

Note: For more information on state programs write or call the state postsecondary education commission. Addresses and phone numbers are in Don't Miss Out.

Help From Private Sponsors

Century III Leaders Scholarship Program. National competition conducted by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (1904 Association Drive, Reston, VA 22091). National winner: $11,500. Nine $2,000 runners-up. Also, two primary winners per state — $1,500 each — and two state alternates — $500 each. Competition announcements available September 1 each year. Watch for high school announcement.

Edmonds Scholarships. Top 25% class standing; 3.2 grade average; clear educational goal; desire to achieve goal; financial need. For application, write Edmonds Educational Foundation, 501 Fannin Street, Houston, TX 77004. Get application before you submit FAF, FFS, or GAPSFAS (read Don't Miss Out if you don't know what these forms are). Applications are due by March 15.

Engineering. Top 25% high school standing. 120 plus awards — $1,000 each (some higher). Renewable. Some awards reserved for minorities and women. National Society of Professional Engineers Educational Foundation, 2029 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. By mid-October.

Jostens Foundation Scholarships to recognize the contributions of outstanding high school leaders. Not renewable. Watch for high school announcement (administered by CSFA, P.O. Box 636, Concord, NH 03301).

National Honor Society. Approximately 250 $1,000 scholarships per year. Two seniors in each chapter eligible to compete. Apply through chapter.

National Merit Scholarship Corporation (One American Plaza, Evanston, IL 60201). Two programs: National Merit Scholarship Program and National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students.

Program participants take the PSAT/NMSQT — a test — in the fall of the junior year of high school. The following fall, the highest scorers are honored for their test performance. In a typical year, about 38,000 students from both programs will earn Commended Student status. Ranking above them are 16,500 Semifinalists. Approximately 90% — or 15,000 — of the Semifinalists are named Finalists.

Finalists have an opportunity to win one of three monetary awards:

1. Nonrenewable $1,000 scholarships. Approximately 1500 awards. All finalists are eligible to compete for one of these awards.

2. Renewable (4-year) college-sponsored scholarships. Approximately 2100 awards offered by some 240 colleges. The value of these scholarships must correspond to at least half the winner's computed need, within the limits of a $250 minimum and a $2,000 maximum per year. Finalists must select a sponsoring college as first choice to be considered for an award. The colleges choose award recipients.

3. Renewable (4-year) corporate-sponsored scholarships. Approximately 1700 awards. Value range: generally between $250 and $2,000 per year. Most awards in this category are restricted to the children of employees of the sponsoring organizations.

A Hint for Students Recognized by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation

Our tables on collegiate academic scholarships do not repeat the information in the National Merit Scholarship Corporation's Student Bulletin.

However, many colleges which do not participate in the Corporation's programs are anxious to attract commended students, semifinalists, and finalists. These schools are identified with the coding "10" in the tables that describe collegiate academic scholarships.

In many instances, moreover, these offers are not based on need, whereas the official college-sponsored National Merit Scholarships are need-based.

Science. Westinghouse Science Scholarships. 40 winners share c. $100,000 in awards. Also, 300 Honorable Mentions are brought to the attention of colleges as prime recruiting prospects. Requires 1,000-word project report. Inquire from high school science department or Science Service, 1719 N Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. By December 15.

Talents. Write for booklet Advisory List of National Contests and Activities. $1.00. National Association of Secondary School Principals, 1904 Association Drive, Reston, VA 22091.

CHAPTER 4 — A WORD ABOUT COLLEGIATE ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIPS

Your Award May Be Worth More Than You Realize

Quickly review the sections in Don't Miss Out that explain "family contribution," "need" and "financial aid package." You have to understand these concepts to make sense of "no-need" and "need-based" awards and whether such awards mean that (1) you write a smaller check to the college or (2) you get a better deal on your financial aid package or (3) both.

Let's approach this situation logically.

In selecting a college, you either have need (Figure 1) — which means the college costs more than your family's ability to contribute toward its cost — or you have no need (Figure 2).

You Have Need

You Have No Need

The no-need award reduces the cost of the college by the amount of the award (i.e. if the college costs $5,000 and the award is $1,000, your college bill will be $4,000).

The need-based award, on the other hand, is applied to your need. It can fill part of your need, your whole need, but it can't be more than your need. (Example 1: Your need is $2,000 and the award is $1,000. You get the thousand dollars and still have $1,000 of need. Example 2: Your need is $2,000 and the award is $2,000. You get the $2,000 and your need is wiped out. Example 3: Your need is $2,000 and the award is $3,000. You get $2,000 of the award, satisfying your need. The remaining $1,000 is retained in the college's scholarship kitty).

A "no-need" award may cover your need plus part of your family contribution

A "need-based" award is applied to your need

Given the fact that you may have need or that you may not and that you are competing for a no-need award or for a need-based award, you may encounter one of four situations:

SITUATION #1: You have need and the award is a no-need award (Figures 1 & 3). The cost of college is reduced by the amount of your award. This reduction may also eliminate part of your need, your entire need, or your need and part of your family contribution. Which of these it will be depends on the numbers. For instance: Example 1 — Your family contribution is $3,000; your need is $2,000; the cost of college is $5,000; and your award is $1,000. You will end up with a $3,000 family contribution and $1,000 of need. Example 2 — Your family contribution is $3,000; your need is $2,000; the cost of college is $5,000; and you award is $2,000. You will end up with a $3,000 family contribution and no need. Example 3 — Your family contribution is $3,000; your need is $2,000; the cost of college is $5,000; and your award is $3,000. Now you end up with a $2,000 family contribution and no need.

SITUATION #2: You have need and the award is a need-based award (Figures 1 & 4). The award is used to reduce the amount of your need. The award cannot be greater than your need. Example 1 — You have $1,000 of need and your award is $500. Outcome: Your need will be reduced to $500. Example 2 — You have $1,000 of need and your award is $1,500. Outcome: You will receive only $1,000 of the $1,500 award.

SITUATION #3: You have no need and the award is a no-need award (Figures 2 & 3). In this case, the money goes directly to you. It replaces your own money. You write a smaller check when you pay your college bill.

SITUATION #4: You have no need and the award is a need-based award (Figures 2 & 4). Need-based awards usually come in a range. Example: $250 to $2,000. The smaller end of the range is an honorary stipend for students who have no need. The upper end is for students with maximum need. In this case, if you qualify for the $250/$2,000 award, your own contribution to college costs will be reduced by the $250 honorary stipend.

Two More Goodies

There are two more things you should know — and both are good: If you are the recipient of an academic award and have need, you are likely to (1) get a better financial aid package than students of lesser academic merit; and (2) get priority on assistance, especially when resources are scarce.

Characteristics of Collegiate Academic Scholarships

- Some academic scholarships are awarded automatically. They are offered to every applicant who stands in the top 5% or 10% of his/her graduating class or who has a high grade average or who scores well on the ACT or SAT. You don't have to apply for the scholarships.
- Some academic scholarships require an application separate from the application for admission. You will be told whether you were successful in your quest at the same time that you receive your acceptance notice.
- Some academic scholarships require you to be accepted first. Only then are you allowed to compete.
- Some academic scholarships require you to enroll before you can compete for the awards.
- Some academic scholarships are available only to entering freshmen. Some are offered only to transfer students. But most are open to both groups. Colleges like to upgrade themselves, and the freshman, sophomore, and junior year doors are kept wide open to quality students.

CHAPTER 5 — 845 COLLEGES — 80,000 AWARDS

Is Our List Of Collegiate Academic Awards Complete?

We wish that we could say it is, but it isn't. Who is AWOL from our list?

First, the 240 colleges which offer Merit Scholarships to National Merit Scholarship Corporation finalists, as part of the corporation's official program. You can find these schools in the free pamphlet Student Bulletin (see Chapters 2 and 3).

And about 5% of colleges making academic awards have requested not to be listed or failed to provide us with information.

The 5% includes: (1) schools which make only a handful of small awards; (2) schools which concentrate their recruiting in nearby communities; (3) schools which don't want students to have the ability to compare their offerings with those of other schools; and (4) schools that could not get their response back to us in time to meet our deadline (they'll be listed next year).

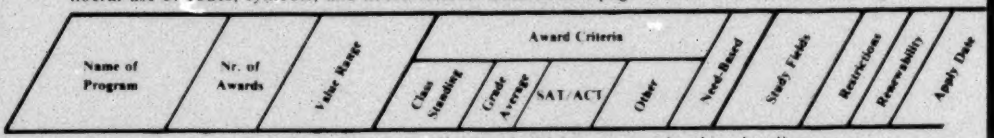
Explanation of Columns & Codes for the Table of Collegiate Academic Awards

The table is organized by state and schools are listed alphabetically within states.

The word college is omitted in all cases. If a school is listed as "St. Thomas," refer to it as "St. Thomas College." If the school is a university, we so state in its name, i.e., "Michigan State University."

Following the school's name, we provide its location and zip code. If the school and its loction have the same name, we skip the town's name and only list the zip, i.e., "University of Akron, 44325."

To describe the awards as fully as possible and yet keep the cost of this publication comparable to the special at the local fast food carry-out, we had to conserve space. Our way of doing this was to make liberal use of codes, symbols, and abbreviations. Each double page in the tables has this heading:



Here is a column-by-column key to the shorthand which we use under these headings.

NAME OF PROGRAM. In most instances, the work "Scholarship" was omitted from the program description. If you inquire about a program identified as "Presidential," refer to it as the "Presidential Scholarship."

NUMBER OF AWARDS. Self-explanatory.

VALUE RANGE. "Tuition" means tuition. But if the college is a public state college or university, the value of tuition is the charge for in-state students, not out-of-staters. "All Costs" generally means tuition and fees. It probably does not include room and board and books. It will definitely not include transportation and miscellaneous student expenses. If the value is expressed as a range, such as 500/1000, it can generally mean one of two things. If the column Need-Based has an N (no), the award range probably corresponds to the applicant's academic qualifications. The higher the grades, test scores and class standing, the higher the award. If, on the other hand, the Need-Based column is marked with a Y (yes), the award range will probably correspond to financial need. Students with little or no need will get the low end of the range, while students with great need will qualify for the upper end.

CLASS STANDING. This can be expressed as an actual standing such as "1-2" for a valedictorian/salutatorian scholarship or it can be expressed as a percentage, i.e. "10%." That, needless to say, is the top ten percent, not the bottom ten percent. An "X" means that class standing is a factor used in selecting students for awards.

GRADE AVERAGE. This can be expressed alphabetically, i.e. "A, A –, B +"; it can be expressed as a grade point average, i.e., "3.5, 3.2, 3.0"; or it can be expressed numerically, i.e. "85, 90." Note: Grade averages are usually computed from "hard" courses such as math, science, languages; grades in basketweaving, synchronized swimming, and horoscope casting are not averaged in. An "X" means that grade average is a factor used in evaluating students for awards.

SAT/ACT. The three-digit and four-digit figures refer to Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores; the two-digit figures refer to the composite score on the American College Testing Program test (ACT). When a percentile is used, such as "90%ile," the college means that students must score higher than 90% of all students taking the SAT or ACT. An "X" means that SAT/ACT scores are a factor in selecting students for awards.

OTHER CRITERIA

1 — Comprehensive/Competitive Exam
2 — Campus Visit Required
3 — Campus Visit Recommended
4 — Interview Required
5 — Interview Recommended
6 — Portfolio/Audition
7 — Recommendation(s) Required
8 — Recommendation(s) Considered
9 — Essay
10 — National Merit Standing
11 — Leadership
12 — Special Requirement. Query School.
13 — Nomination

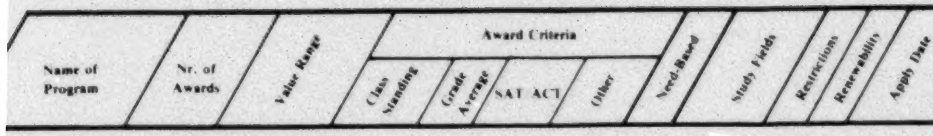
NEED-BASED. An "N" means that financial need is not considered in setting the amount of the award. A "Y" means that financial need is a consideration. An "X" means that some awards are need-based and others are not.

STUDY FIELDS. "A" means all majors offered by a college. At a large university, this may include every major under the sun. At a conservatory, it may include only music. The following specific codes are used in this column:

A — All Majors Available
B — Architecture
C — Art
D — Debate
E — Drama
F — Engineering
F2 — Ship Design Engineering
H — Humanities
I — Management/Business/Accounting
J — Journalism/Writing
K — Music
M — Mathematics
N — Priesthood
O — Nursing
S — Science
T — Talents
U — Chemistry
V — Social Sciences
W — Education
X — Computer Sciences
Y — Agriculture
Z — English

RESTRICTIONS.

N — None
A — State Residents
B — Male Students
C — Female Students
D — U.S. Citizens
E — Regional Distribution
F — Local Awards Included
G — Some Out-of-State Awards
H — Religious Denomination
I — Local Award
J — State and One or More Bordering States
K — Minority Group
L — Locations Which Have Alumni Chapters
V — Several But Not All Rewards Have Restrictions
W — NYC Area
Z — Restricted to Students Who Have Completed Their 1st Year of College at the Institution Offering the Award



RENEWABILITY. Most awards are renewable, provided that the student maintains a predetermined grade average or participates in student activities. Schools which indicate that an award is not renewable may have other awards for which upper class students could qualify. A query is recommended.

Y — Renewable
N — Not Renewable
V — Some Awards Are Renewable, Others Are Not

APPLY DATE. Some awards are automatic. All students who apply to the college and have a predetermined class standing, grade average or SAT/ACT score are eligible. Some awards require a separate application. In some instances, the award is offered along with acceptance. And, in some cases, students cannot apply for the award until after they have been accepted. Also, note that some schools have different application dates for incoming freshmen and for transfer students. Our advice: check dates and procedures with the schools.

A — Separate Application Required
B — All Applicants Considered
C — Must Be Accepted Before Applying
D — Open to Transfers
X — Verify Date/Procedure With School
Y — Apply Anytime, But The Earlier, The Better

Intellectual Value

In Chapter 2, you may recall, we quoted Helen Reynolds of Lovejoy's who urged you not "to trade off money for a dull educational community."

Colleges have realized that attracting bright students is one thing; but challenging them academically is another. Brainy girls and boys won't hold still very long in classes where professors speak very slowly and carefully in one syllable words and then repeat them twice for the fast learners and four times for the slow learners.

To meet the needs of the academically talented, colleges have invented Honors Programs. Academic Scholarships and Honors Programs complement one another. The first draws the bodies, and the second pours knowledge into their heads.

What are Honors Programs? That depends on the school. Some are departmental in nature; others are school-wide efforts. They can include individually arranged programs of instruction, independent research, interdisciplinary studies, special seminars, smaller classes, or a chance to sit at the feet of a renowned professor and absorb his thought while brushing pipe ashes from your hair.

Some schools (such as the University of South Carolina or Michigan State) go one step further. They have turned their honors programs into Honors Colleges — colleges within colleges — where special dormitories, classes and curricula are set aside for program participants.

One more benefit. Many times, a special notation on the sheepskin which you receive for satisfying the requirements of the baccalaureate will indicate that you participated in your alma mater's honors program. That will give your diploma a slight special glow which will light the passage to graduate school.

How can you find out about honors programs? Most standard college directories such as Peterson's Annual Guide to Undergraduate Study and the College Board's The College Handbook will tell you if the col'ege(s) of your choice have honors programs. H wever, these guides will not tell you what the make-up and magnitude of the programs are. This you will have to find out for yourself. Best way: when writing to the colleges for information, request their "honors program brochure."

Monetary Value

In most cases, no special stipends or scholarships are offered for joining the honors program.

But there are two financial advantages for program participants:

1. Honors program students can generally expect to be assigned a higher priority in the competition for college-controlled student aid funds. The rule of thumb in awarding these resources is "to the ablest of the needy." Let's say Old Underwood University has $1,000 left to award in student aid. Here comes John Gehirn, an honors program student, with $1,000 of need, and here comes Jane Dummkopf, a C – average bee therapy major, also with $1,000 of need. Who gets Old Underwood's grant? You guessed it. John Gehirn. (Now if Jim Dicksitz enters the competition, Jim weighing 300 pounds and being capable of doing 40 yards in 4.0, Gehirn will have to start worrying . . .).

2. Academic scholarships coupled with good honors programs make a formidable combination. In many instances, this one-two punch is a strong competitor to the highly selective $12,000 per year prestige colleges. On a comparison basis, the intellectual environment and challenge offered by an honors program and a prestige college may be on a par. The purchase price for the education tilts sharply toward the school with the academic scholarship/honors program combination. The snob appeal, on the other hand, depresses the scale toward the prestige school.

If one doesn't care about having a designer label stuck to his or her diploma, one should keep in mind that a high-quality education can be obtained at schools other than the $12,000-per-year "most selective" colleges. In this sense, honors programs become a lower-cost alternative for securing a first-class, individualized and highly challenging learning experience.
